EXPOSITION PLANS ARE GOING AHEAD IN AN EFFORT TO OUTDO THE KING

King Anasurus started an exposition as is told in the Book of Esther to show the riches of his prosperous kingdom. Over 150 days the exposition continued and he would not let it go until he was satisfied with it. A big feast was given and the king of Persia was so impressed that he would give up his throne and become a subject of the king of Persia. The directors of the Kingston Fair Grounds are and representatives of the Chamber of Commerce are working in a splendid manner to make the exposition such as will show to the people an insight into just how diversified are the industries in Kingston and Ulster county. Already contracts for the tent cover 25,000 square feet of ground have been let. These tents will be erected three days before the opening, which takes place August 27th and continues through September 1st.

By Telegram to The Freeman. New York, July 11.—Following a sample set recently by physicians who contested government authority to say how much liquor might prescribe for a patient, Alexander Savitch, a druggist, today filed suit to restrain Palmer Canfield, state prohibition director, from interfering with a drug stock of alcohol kept for other than beverage purposes. Savitch, who has a drug store in East Side, contends that the government's amendment does not give him the right to interfere with alcohol intended for the manufacture of standard remedies, for the compounding of doctors' prescriptions. He states that he has charged all obligations to the federal government when he pays liquor dealers' license fee of $25 monthly and the narcotic dealers' fee of $5 annually. All laws attempting to interfere with supply of alcohol for other than beverage purposes are unconstitutional, Savitch avers. The state of New York, he says, is the sole right to enact public health laws to guard and protect its citizens and to determine who shall dispense pharmacology and who shall dispense compound retail drugs. Chemicals, medicines or prescriptions within the state. Savitch says he has spent $12,000 stocking his drug store with alcohol and has secured licenses from state and city authorities. He says that having done this and paid taxes for liquor and narcotic drug privilege, the United States has no right to interfere with him in the people of the state of New York have all reserved to themselves all powers for the use and sale of alcohol for non-beverage purposes.

At Health Conference.

Mrs. Mary O'Neil submitted this report of health conference, Saratoga Springs, June 26, 27, and 28.

At the public health conference held at Saratoga Springs there was registered 1,112 health officers, nurses and guests.

Among the speakers were Dr. Lewis A. Connor, Cornell Medical School; Dr. Elliot P. Joslin, Harvard Medical School; Dr. Daniel O'Neil of the Endicott-Johnson Corp. of Binghamton; Dr. Arthur B. Emmons, 2nd, of Harvard Medical School and Dr. C. E. A. Winslow of the Yale Medical School.

Dr. Connor discussed the prevention of cardiac diseases especially among children emphasized the manner in which chronic diseases are now being included in the field of public health and preventive medicine. Dr. Connor also said that certain types of heart diseases are just as truly preventable diseases as are, for example, tuberculosis or typhoid. This conception of heart disease as a health problem is of very recent date and its origin dates back only about ten years.

Dr. Connor said that 1.6 per cent of the children examined in New York City schools exhibited some form of heart defect.

Dr. Elliot P. Joslin gave an account of the discovery of the insulin treatment for diabetes which however must be used in conjunction with proper diet. Dr. Joslin said that up to the age of 50 years people who are underweight are forty times less likely to have diabetes.

Dr. Daniel O'Neil described the medical service of Endicott-Johnson Corporation of Binghamton which employs a staff of 27 physicians, 51 nurses for the medical advice and care of their 16,000 workers located in three communities of Endicott-Johnson City and Binghamton.

These three separate communities

are each supplied with a medical center each maintaining a general office for diagnosis and treatment and each maintaining hospital beds for care of maternity cases. These three medical centers are under the management of a director who has supervision of all the welfare work done by the company. The company maintains a staff of visiting nurses whose services are available as assistants to the doctors in the homes of the workers and who do general visiting nursing and the follow up work in each community. Each nurse is provided with an auto so she is able to cover a large territory and give services in many homes each day. The staff doctors made 75,000 visits to the homes last year and the visiting nurses made about 15,000. In 1922 the medical service cost the company $398,500 for salaries of doctors, nurses and attendants, drugs and supplies, maintenance of automobiles, buildings and outside service of nurses, doctors, hospitals and sanatoria. The effect of this medical service for our workers said Dr. O'Neil is apparent. We have a family of happy contented workers.

Dr. Arthur B. Emmons, described the cooperation system of industrial hygiene in retail stores which is carried on in Boston and other eastern cities at a relatively small cost. Dr. Emmons said that the medical supervision of the employees being done by full time salaried physicians who usually have had post graduate medical courses in the division of industrial hygiene. "Each participating store," said Dr. Emmons, "is surveyed from a sanitary and health point of view. Recommendations for a suitable health service to the individual store are then made. These stores by reducing turn over and lost time from illness profit financially and in other ways. The physician and nurses have exceptional opportunity to see illness early and to practice preventive medicine."

Noiseless Trolley Cars May Be Built.

The rattle and din of moving trolley cars in St. Paul and Minneapolis will be eliminated if plans of the Twin City Rapid Transit company mature. The two cities will have the first noiseless street cars in the world. Roller bearings will solve the problem and trucks equipped with the bearings are now being made at the shops. The company, however, hopes to decrease something besides noise. It is expected that the new bearings will remove friction in the truck shafts, will save 15 per cent of the power and will enable motormen to stop and start cars more quickly. The company hopes to save a large item in power by the use of the new cars.—Brooklyn Eagle.

ACCORD.

Accord, July 10.—On Saturday evening, July 7, one of the finest amateur plays "Jack Norton's Dream," ever given in the Rondout Valley was presented to the largest audience ever seen in the Odd Fellows' Hall. All members of the cast showed exceptional ability in impersonating the characters of the play. The stage settings were effective and artistic and cleverly portrayed the two entirely different scenes. Our theatrical friend, E. Doremus, was present and was cordial in his praise of the talent and ability shown. The community should be justly proud of Mr. and Mrs. Hal Eppes who wrote and staged such a successful play.

ENES LOOMS IN REPARATIONS ISSUE

Final Effort to Secure Curzon and Baldwin From Demand for Swift Settlement—Britain to Pledge Passive Resistance.

London, July 11.—Premier Benes of Czechoslovakia conferred today with Lord Curzon in a final effort to avert the threatened rupture between England and France over the reparations and Ruhr issues.

Benes, leader of the Little Entente, and admitted to be one of the ablest statesmen in Europe, has been in Paris and has consulted with French officials on the question involved.

While it was considered likely he might bring some message from the British foreign secretary, it was not expected that his mission would serve England in her course at this late stage of negotiations.

The British cabinet met again today to put the finishing touches to the British plan of reparations settlement which is to be announced tomorrow by Premier Stanley Baldwin.

One of the important features of the statement, it was learned today, is to express Great Britain's approval of Germany's passive resistance in the Ruhr, and a hint that its continuance is an obstacle to peace.

The Baldwin statement will be most diplomatic but firm and will urge to France that England demands a settlement of the reparations problem.

A draft of the note that England has sent to the Allies, inviting their participation in a general conference of nations on reparations, is expected to be ready for the prime minister's consideration today.

Plaits Very Much in Season's Mode

Decoration Regarded as Almost Necessary to Emphasize Style.

Everywhere one sees well-dressed women this season they are wearing plaits in some guise or other. Plaits are representative of the season's gowns. They are almost necessary to establish the tone of the well-dressed woman, declares a fashion writer in the New York Times.

There is an artistic encouragement, too, about this new fad for plaiting. The American woman has gone in largely for simplicity, but at last it seems that she has awakened to greater possibilities. She finds that she can be just as picturesque as the woman who reclined on the porch in the old days, not in the same way, but with equal charm.

Take her morning dresses, for instance. They are made of soft silks, in dark and inconspicuous colors, but with artistic and flowing lines. She now has a little plaited cape to throw over her shoulders for street wear and under that her gown has no sleeves at all. This cape can be worn with a street hat. It has no extra weight, no bulky quality about it, and it makes of her gown, no matter how informal that may be, a thing suitable for street, indoor or country wear.

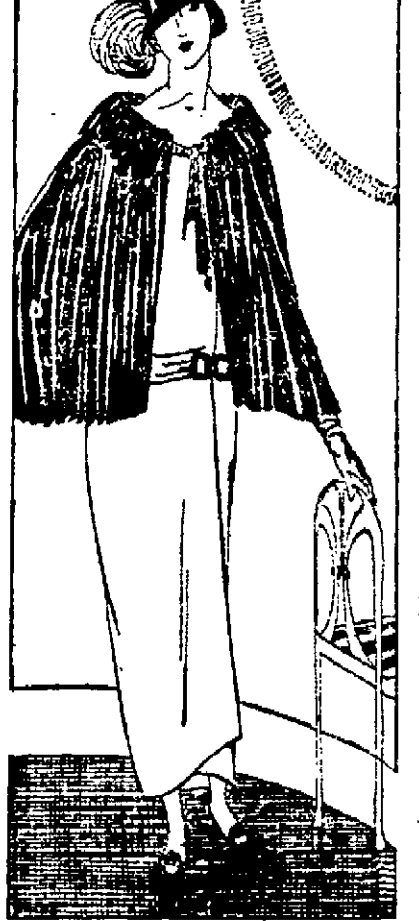

Sometimes this plaited cape reaches the waistline only, sometimes it is of three-quarters length, and again it reaches to the heels. But in each instance it is light in weight and extremely graceful, so that whatever its expression or wherever it is worn, it becomes a part of the costume. The longer capes are likely to have fur collars and the shorter ones are provided, in many instances, with collars of their own material, either tucked or plaited. They are tied in front with informal bows of narrow ribbon and there is really nothing about them to suggest the formal. The long ones perhaps are a trifle more useful than those which are shorter, because they can be worn with evening as well as daytime dresses, and this, of course, is something not to be scoffed at. It is in the evening that a light cape is most necessary for comfort, no matter how it may be desired during the daytime hours for good looks alone.

Is Generally Liked.
The plaited dress is popular with all. An interesting gown has a plaited apron in front and a plaited cape dropping from the shoulders. That is an excellent example of the partially plaited dress which has made such a hit this season. It can be plaited in other sections, for it can have plaited side panels, or plaited sleeves, or plaited front and back sections in perfect regularity. But if it is an accepted street or afternoon or evening dress for this season it will have some plaiting about it.

Plaitings do away with all necessity for extra bits of trimming because they are trimmings in themselves. The panels of plaits, though they are made of the same material as the gown, have a way of looking like so much trimming. There may be a bit of ribbon binding, or sash of tulle, but in the main the dress that is plaited in any one place has the plaiting alone to answer for its style.

The plaited skirts are all that is necessary to show the general prevalence of the style and the heartiness with which it has been accepted. They are an established feature of the season and just as smart as they can be. Any woman who has one may feel sure that she is walking in the best circles so far as fashions are concerned. And they are economical. They can be worn with so many and different sorts of overdresses and overcoats that one single skirt is capable of being multiplied into any number of various and beautiful gowns. The smart women know this and have adopted the plaited skirt with little or no reservation. They have decided that, for the present at least, they are the adherents of the plaited skirt because it does so much to place their dressing in the highest rank of smart styles.

Blouses are plaited in many and various ways. And they are the most delightful of all accessories to the wardrobe. They have burst into the forefront of fashion with no little zest and are filling a place that has long been denied them. Perhaps this is because they have been designed by artists who know what it is.

Printed Silk Blouses.
There are blouses of printed silks plaited over their entire surface. They are usually minus sleeves of any sort, but the width of the plaiting falls over the arms in the most graceful manner and manages to suggest a sleeve with out the least attempt at being formal. Then there is the blouse which has a plaited plain panel in front and a printed silk underarm section that repeats the silk used in the making of the skirt. This is a clever adaptation of the vogue for plaits and one that will be accepted by any woman who has in mind the making over of a frock that may have seen better days.

Even coats are taking on the plaited vogue. They are showing hidden plaits and those that appear on the surface.

The coat for everyday, with plaited sleeves, has become quite a factor in style. It is as plain as can be so far as the body of the garment is concerned. When it comes to the sleeves, there is that fullness of plaited stuff which gives grace and charm and a flowing line. For instance, there is a coat made of light brown wool broadcloth. It is lined with orange crepe de chine. There are light brown chiffon sleeves, extraordinarily full, gathered into tight little cuffs which start in wide, square armholes, and at the cuffs there is a fold of the orange crepe peeping from underneath—this is the two materials together and to give the general color scheme an excuse for being.

These sleeves are particularly attractive for evening wraps, but they are to be found on street coats, as well, and there are evening capes that show plain surfaces with plaited chiffon linings to help them.

Plaited Hats Predominate.

As for hats, they have more plaits than all of the dresses put together. They seem to have taken to the idea with enthusiasm, and women who have decided to wear hats with plaited trimmings, or hats made entirely of plaited stuff, say that they have never been better satisfied. They find that plaitings, when applied to hats, are even more successful than with dresses, and that they give a certain style worthy of any style of dress.

There are plaited flares of taffeta silk applied as fans to the front of crowns. They are held together by means of rhinestone buckles or tied in the center with knots and bows of their own materials. They are used for trimming the backs of short-brimmed hats, as much of the style of a hat this season is centered at the back. Some of the hats are more naive in the manner of their appearance. They are trimmed with plaited ribbons that run around the bases of the crowns in more or less thick masses. Sometimes they are made of silk, again of narrow ribbons, put on in tiers, and again they are plaited chiffons and plaited wools or laces which give to the hats that airiness of summer appearance which is much to be desired.

Some of the little light cloche shapes have plaitings around the outer edges of their brims, and these, of course, are done in narrow widths, with every attention to plaiting them finely. These are particularly attractive when done in dark blue shades, or in black, or in one of the many tan or brown shades so popular this season.

The Difficulties of Simplicity.
Do not forget that to furnish an elegant house elegantly is one of the easiest matters in the whole wide world. But that to furnish a simple house artistically requires much good sense. If you succeed in doing this latter you have all the earmarks of genius and your world is a wide one though your home is narrow. Some people with plenty of money know this and refuse to live sumptuously.

Five Hundred Days Without Water.

Interesting experiments of great importance to areas liable to severe drought were carried out recently by the Grootfontein School of Agriculture in South Africa to ascertain whether stock could be kept alive for lengthy periods on a ration of prickly pear leaves alone. It was demonstrated that sheep, though they fell off in condition, could exist for 250 days solely on a diet of prickly pear, and when a small allowance of lucerne was fed in addition after that period the sheep were able to go for 300 days without a drop of water, depending on the moisture from the prickly pear.

Attractive Men.

The truth is that women find strange charms in unlikely people. It is so obvious to fall in love with Adonis. Voice, gesture, appealingness, the strength that masks itself in gentleness, a whimsical way, that "something" which a woman novelist once perfectly expressed as "tenderness and absurdity"—these things have a more subtle attraction than broad shoulders and flashing eyes. And a more lasting attraction, too, since they are not always the same, yesterday, tomorrow, and for ever! Yet the masculine fallacy that women prefer Adonis still persists! How lucky for his jealous admirers that it is a fallacy!

Use for Old Newspapers.

The housewife who can rely on a constant supply of clean newspapers is a fortunate woman. Should she be obliged to do the greater part of her own housework, she will find that not only labor but expense will be saved by their intelligent use. A whole copy of a long paper folded carefully lengthwise, and placed on the tread and over the edge of each stair before the carpet is laid, will prove equal to an expensive felt pad for saving the "wear," and equally efficacious for deadening sound. The idea holds good for use beneath the carpets of rooms, but naturally the large newspapers would not be folded.

Forecasts From Coffee Cups.

When having breakfast you can try a very simple experiment with a cup of coffee and a lump or two of loaf sugar. Having dropped the lumps of sugar into the cup of coffee carefully, watch the air bubbles that rise to the surface. If they suddenly rush from the center to the side of the cup you can be sure that it is going to rain very hard. If the air bubbles assemble in the center and then pass to the side of the cup in a deliberate way, you must still be prepared for what the weather forecasts would call "some showers." But if the bubbles refuse to stir from the center of the cup you may go forth to your labor assured of a fine day.

Who Invented Bowie Knife.

Some authorities say that the Bowie knife was invented by Col. James Bowie, who was born in 1796, and was killed in the Alamo with Col. Travis and David Crockett in 1836 during the Texan revolution against Mexico. Col. Bowie was a great hunter and one of the most daring Indian fighters in the southern states. On the Potomac river is the grave of a man who was killed by Bowie in a duel before the latter went to Texas. Other authorities say that Colonel Bowie had nothing to do with the invention of the Bowie knife. They claim it was invented by a man named R. P. Bowie, about whom very little is known.

Grand Canal of China.

The Grand canal of China is by far the longest canal in the world. It reaches from Hangchow to Tientsin, the port of Peking, and covers a distance of nearly 1,600 miles. It crosses two of the world's largest rivers, the Huang and the Yangtze.

For about 130 miles north of the Yangtze the canal is still navigable, but from that point to Tientsin it is choked with mud and is generally deserted. A plan is now on foot to reconstruct the northern sections. For the time being only about seven million dollars can be devoted to work that will put in order a section 100 miles in length. The reconstruction is in the hands of American engineers.—Exchange.

LET THERE BE LIGHT.

The city street lighting contract, made in 1913, expired several months ago and no new contract has been made. This is a matter of interest to every citizen of Kingston and also a cause for much bewilderment. Thus far there has been no explanation of the deadlock between the Board of Public Works and the Kingston Gas and Electric Company beyond the publication of the lump sum prices for lighting and statements by Board of Public Works members that the new price is too high. No specifications have been given and no adequate idea of proposed improvement in the present archaic type of service.

Municipal lighting must have progressed in the ten years since the old contract was made and expert engineers can be found who can tell the Board how to get adequate street lighting at the lowest cost. There must be some way to substitute something more modern and economical for the expensive arc lights and something more efficient for the miserable little bug lights now in use. There might be something in a better placing of the lights. The Public Service Commission has in its employ engineers competent to solve these problems and evolve a proper system, as well as to pass on the reasonableness of any contract proposed. So long as there is a deadlock and the city is paying for lighting that is far behind the times, why not call on the Public Service Commission for advice and help?

In the meantime, why not tell the people all about the matter, so they can judge wherein the prices and plans submitted by the Kingston Gas and Electric Company are at fault. Let there be light, not only on the streets but also on the questions in dispute.

OUR "COLD SUMMER."

The business of the prophet, especially the weather prophet, is so full of hazard that one would naturally expect him to speak in the cryptic terms of a Delphian oracle or to imitate the political campaigner who contradicts himself often enough in a single speech to meet every possible contingency and to enable him to say "I told you so," whatever the event. Late in last April—that shivery April—an "eminent heliographer" of Washington threw caution to the winds and, in discussing the "sun's strike," made bold to predict "a damaskingly cold summer" that might even appreciate the disastrous one of 1816, with frosts in June and July and wholesale loss of crops. Commenting on this venturesome prediction, the writer of these lines remarked editorially: "It is gratifying to know that weather bureau officials declined to commit themselves on Dr. Abbot's startling pronouncement, for their attitude indicates not merely the caution of the wise but at least some measure of hope that the sun may reconsider and after a while consent to give forth the usual amount of heat as well as light. Those of us with long memories know that the sun has lapsed into irregular habits before today and later on functioned with all his accustomed munificence. For this reason it requires no extra stretch of the imagination to envision sweltering July and August days to come that will make us wish that old Sol would even hold up a little."

As we all now know, it was not necessary to wait for July or August. June itself producing its hottest day in 52 years and two long "spells" of blistering heat, in the presence of which of course the "eminent heliographer" and the other "cold summer" prophets were dumb.

A Democratic contemporary tells us that "Harding wavers on the League of Nations." Oh, no, he doesn't. In the campaign of 1920 he declared that it was not interpretation of the league covenant he wanted, but rejection. He said he would have no man's vote upon a misunderstanding of his position on this subject. He declared that the difference between himself and Mr. Cox was clear—that Cox favored going into the league while he favored staying out. Mr. Harding stands just exactly in that same position now. He says he does not favor going in by the front door, the side door or the cellar door. What wavering is there in that?

1. How can a spider grasp anything so thin as its own web to climb up it?

The ends of the spider's 7-jointed legs end in toothed claws which, under the microscope, show up like combs. This formation makes it possible to catch the feet on the thread. Some spiders have the claws more elaborately comb-fitted than others, particularly the orb-weaving spiders, which must place and fasten the ends of the web very exactly and draw them taut.

2. Are truffles the same as mushrooms?

They are fungi and mushrooms are fungi, but truffles grow underground, near the roots of certain trees. The truffle does not resemble the mushroom in looks, being warty in surface and lumpy in shape. Of edible species, some are no bigger than a nut, and some as big as an apple or orange.

3. Does the red-winged blackbird go south after the young are able to fly? I notice in a swamp near my home that they disappear with their young much earlier than grackles which stay till frost.

Authorities give different dates for their fall migration, which may occur up to the middle of November. But it is possible the later migrants are individuals that have been summering further north. The bulk of the migration does happen late in August. The birds begin to gather in flocks some time previous to starting on their journey.

A potato masher, devised by Dr. Richard D. Roderick of Hazleton, Pa., is of novel shape, consisting of a segment of a cylinder. Across the bottom of the masher is attached the usual mashing screen. As the potato masher conforms to the contour of the inner portion of the container in which the potatoes have been cooked, its shape facilitates the mashing of the potatoes within the container.

WHY

Light and Smell Aid the Sense of Taste

What we know as taste is a somewhat more complicated sense than is commonly supposed. Now, with the sense of taste alone it is only possible to detect four flavors, which are sweet, sour, bitter and salt. All the more delicate flavors are discerned with the aid of the sense of smell. This is easily proved by holding the nostrils when eating any kind of jam, for instance. In such conditions it is quite impossible to detect the special flavor of the fruit.

A yet more curious point is to be found in the fact that the ability to taste is to an extent, at any rate, dependent upon sight. Few people can detect the difference between beer and stout if they drink with their eyes closed. There are also a certain number of persons who cannot tell tea from coffee if they shut their eyes when drinking.

Most of the men blinded during the war lost all pleasure in smoking; they said the tobacco had no flavor to them. In many cases by using a stronger tobacco the lost pleasure in smoking has been regained. An interesting test for ordinary people, suggests a Scientific American authority, is to close the eyes while smoking a pipe or a cigarette. It is amazing the difference that is made, proving beyond all doubt that seeing the curling smoke has a great deal to do with appreciating the aroma of the tobacco.

So all this seems to indicate that, after all, the senses of smell and sight are highly important in exercising our full sense of taste.

CHANGE NOT ALWAYS GOOD

Why It Is Sometimes Inadvisable to Urge Convalescent to Seek Different Surroundings.

Physicians and the friends of those who have been ill or "out of sorts" usually advise them to "go away for a change." The medical correspondent of the London Times takes issue with such advisers; he doubts the wisdom of this counsel. It is well meant, he says, but it leaves a great deal out of consideration. What our friends never seem to realize, he points out, is that when we are not quite fit we desire most of all to avoid new sensations, new faces, new discomforts.

The desire is absolutely physiological. For each new sensation demands a new, and hence a difficult response, he says. We should scarcely choose the moment of a schoolboy's convalescence from measles to insist on his beginning the study of Latin. Nevertheless, it will be argued, changes do assist recovery from illness and do, frequently, prevent illness from developing. They do, but only when taken at the right time and in the right doses. When taken before the patient is fit to stand the strain they are often dangerous, the physician points out.

It is far better to wait until there has been recovery of strength and then, when fit enough, to make a trip on which one can follow a hobby, such as fishing or golf, he declares.

Why Bricks Are Standard Size.

Why are bricks made the size they are? The Romans used bricks largely and Britain still has many of the bricks they made during the three centuries that England was a flourishing civilized Roman colony full of splendid dwellings and public buildings. St. Alban's cathedral, for instance, contains a great deal of Roman brick. These bricks were thin and square like tiles. Modern bricks were fixed at their present size in England by a law passed in the reign of George III. Now bricks may be made legally any size, but that law pretty well established the standard size at 8 by 4½ by 3 inches. Up to seventy or eighty years ago there was an English tax on bricks. To evade it people made bricks of different sizes. That is why the law fixed the size. If there was no standard size architects would not be able to make their calculations for contracts.

Why Bungalow Was Invented.

India is said to have produced the bungalow. The extreme heat in that country made necessary a house of the type. It was always of single-story construction, low, rambling, with broad verandas and overhanging eaves.

In America we have come to describe as a bungalow almost anything that is informal and picturesque, whether it is built entirely on one floor or has an addition of another half-story.

Unless unusually well insulated, the rooms built within the roof of a bungalow are apt to be hot in summer. The second story of a house is cooler when there is a clear attic space above.

Why He Wanted the Notebook.

Edwin had found a small notebook among his brother's possessions and was scribbling on its pages when his brother remonstrated and the book was taken away from him. "What do you need of a notebook?" he was asked. "Why," answered the boy readily, "I need it to set down my thoughts in, so I won't forget any of them."

The Ananias Club.

"I am just as satisfied when I come home and find my wife is serving a salad with lettuce sandwiches instead of having bothered about getting up a big meal," declared the man who had an appetite like a horse.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

MOHONK TENNIS
TOURNAMENT ONStelle. One of Kingston Players.
Goes Out in Singles—Mac Fadden
Remains—Dr. Hawk and Mrs.
Lynch Likely to Repeat Victory of Last Year.

On the Lake Mohonk courts there started Tuesday morning what promises to be the best tennis tournament ever held there. The title at stake is the championship of Ulster county and players from all of the eastern states are competing. There are forty-two entries in the men's singles and thirty-two for the women's singles. The entries for the former include some of the top-ranked men of the country, five having national ranking and twenty-two eastern ranking. With the first day's play over, but sixteen men are left in the running. Dr. Phillip B. Hawk, twice winner of the Jeffre's three year cups, has an excellent chance to win it again. Mrs. Lynch, last year's champion among the women, will probably repeat. Kingston's entries are Mac Fadden and Stelle, both known to tennis enthusiasts of this city by their splendid work on the Kingston High School team. They are the youngest entries.

The day was bright and cloudless, the courts hard as asphalt, no dust, with a slight breeze from the south-west. In the morning Kingston's entries took a good deal of the gallery's attention. Play was started at 10 o'clock, standard time. Mac Fadden won from A. Blackman by default in the first round; Stelle drew a "bye." Vetchie, whom Kingstonians know as a member of the Greenhill Camp team which has played many times with the local "Y" team, was entered but was unable to be present, defaulting his match to John Craver, Jr. Mac Fadden and Craver were matched in the second round. The gallery was about one hundred. Dr. Hawk, playing through champion, was showing excellent form.

Mac Fadden and Craver started play at ten-fifteen. Mac used his serve and drive to win eleven straight points. He took five straight games and lost the sixth by netting forehand drives. He took the seventh easily. Score 6-1. Mac Fadden took the first game in the second set and dropped the second. Something seemed to be wrong with his game. He won the third and dropped three in a row by netting drives, working his overhead weakly and serving for him, poorly. However, not because he was better, but because Craver was worse, he brought the games to "four all" and hit his stride and ran off the remaining two. Score 6-4.

Mac Fadden is matched today against Leighton of New York and if he wins then he is up against Fischer of New York, a top rank player of the east.

Stelle started play against C. N. Harlan, dark horse in the championship race. Mr. Harlan is a player of high rank and Stelle's inexperience counted against him. The hard courts and very lively balls made it impossible for him to play his cut stroke game and he resorted to Tilden-like tennis, despite the fact that his forehand drive has never been worth much. Although off his game, Stelle played gamely.

Stelle and Harlan entered the courts at ten-fifteen. Harlan took the first six points, before Stelle could start. Harlan played Stelle's back court for four games, his drives working like clockwork, keeping the Kingston man constantly on the run. Stelle took the net in the fifth game and broke through Harlan's service for a lone game. The next two games went to Harlan after much fighting. Stelle's forehand improved. Score 6-1.

The second set was featured by hard volleys, long back-court rallies and several service aces by both men. However, Stelle was not accustomed to back-court play and again lost the first four games, winning a lone game on his service through his net work. He made a bold stand and kept the gallery's attention by giving Harlan one of the hardest fights of his career but to no avail. He lost the set and match. Score, 6-1.

The fastest and most interesting of the second round matches in the women's singles tourney was that between Mrs. Lynch and Miss Davies. Mrs. Lynch winning by the scores of 6-2, 6-2. Mrs. Lynch won the women's title last year while Miss Davies was last year's runner up. The match was much harder fought than the scores would indicate but the good control and speed of Mrs. Lynch's forehand drive put the outcome of the issue beyond doubt. Both players played fine tennis and the match was featured by a number of real spirited volleys. Miss Davies employed a pretty backhand drive, crosscourt that in a measure offset the strong forehand drive used by Mrs. Lynch. The match with the exception of one or two occasions was strictly back-court play. Judging from today's play and form Mrs. Lynch looks good to again come through to the finals.

What was by far the most spectacular and the hardest fought tennis of the day was the match between P. Marbin and W. Toussant, the former winning by the scores of 6-4, 3-6, 9-7. Marbin is one of the top ranking eastern players while Toussant has a berth not far from the top in Metropolitan racquets ranking. The match was spectacular to the extreme and was featured by an excellence in all around good tennis that kept the large gallery on the verge of nervous breakdown for 2½ hours. The marvelous recovery of seemingly impossible shots, hard baseline and sideline driving, with timely and spectacular net volleys by both men provided thrills enough to draw exclamations of admiration from even the most uninterested spectators.

In the first set the two men played evenly up to 4-4, when the break came. Toussant serving aces the first ball and Marbin netted the second making the score 30-love. On the next point Marbin took the net and volleyed for a placement. Tousant double faulted thus ending the game 30-40. On the next two points Marbin again took the net and took the game by two smashes. On the next game Marbin held his service and so ended the set 6-4.

On the second set Toussant improved and by constant hitting of the net and double faulting, error streaks took the set at 6-8. In this set Marbin showed a perfect control of his drive, passing his opponent time and again and laying his drives down the sidelines and crosscourt with such nicety that his total of placements nearly equalled that of the winner.

The third set was grilling, nerve trying, and hard fought and resulted in Marbin's victory at 9-7. The two men as in the first set played evenly through 4-4, where Marbin broke through for a 5-4 lead, only to be douped at 5 up on the next game. Marbin again broke through for a lead of 6-5 and was again evened up at 6 all. Toussant gained the next game but again the set was evened at 7-7. Marbin took his service and helped by two aces by Toussant in the next game won the set and match at 9-7.

The match of Hubbel vs. Dr. Hawk proved a pleasant surprise for the gallery. Hubbel by hard and consistent backcourt driving and great net work played the champion even up to 4 all when a break came and Dr. Hawk took the set at 6-4. Dr. Hawk's play was such that anyone could readily understand what it was that made him the Veteran's Champion of the United States and well within the first 20 in national ranking. Hubbel played great tennis but made a bad mistake when he abandoned his net attack for backcourt play.

In the second set Hubbel lacked the pep that so nearly won the first for him. His serve was working well and he did some great net work but his drive was nipped or driven out all too frequently. Dr. Hawk's consistent return of every shot seemed to have a disheartening effect and it was not until the games stood 5-1 in Dr. Hawk's favor that Hubbel made a real stand. He took the 7th game and after a hard fought deuce game lost the set at 6-2. Hubbel gave Dr. Hawk one of the hardest runs he has ever experienced in a Mohonk tournament.

Today the 3rd and 4th and 5th rounds of the men's singles are scheduled to come off, also the doubles play starts, both the men's doubles and mixed doubles. Kingston is represented in the men's doubles by Stelle and Mac Fadden. Stelle is also entered in the mixed doubles. In the men's doubles there are about 15 entries against about 16 in the mixed doubles. Among the chief contenders for the mixed doubles crown are Mrs. Lynch and Dr. Hawk, last year's women's and men's singles champions. In the men's doubles Hubbel and Bassford, last year's doubles champions, are again entered.

Dorothy Kauffman, Intl.

One of the strangest murder mysteries of recent years was the stabbing to death of Dorothy Kaufman, a beautiful governess, in the home of Magruder Craighead, near Scarsdale, N. Y. Born in a Mennonite home in Maryland, and given a college education, the girl became principal of the Mennonite school at Shelltown. But the restrictions of the Mennonite faith palled on her. She wanted pretty clothes, like the girls. So she left home and went to work as a servant—and the first thing she bought was a pretty dress. Officials, unable to solve the case, declare the belief that she was killed by a fanatical Mennonite, who thought thus to save her soul.

Mary Alexis, Nurse, Intl.

An astounding case of parental cruelty was heard in Memphis, Tenn., when a 10-year-old girl, known only as Mary Alexis, was examined by doctors in St. Joseph's Hospital there. The child is almost entirely blind as a result of four years' imprisonment in an underground cell, constructed by her parents because she was deformed at birth. A plumbing-making repairs in the cellar of the home, heard sounds and traced them to a sub-cellar, where, in total darkness, he came upon the emaciated, crime-stained child. The girl has been in the hospital under treatment for three years, although her case has just become publicly known. The name of her parents has been withheld by the authorities.

"I hate that chap," quoth the lovable girl, as she rubbed cold cream on her lips.

Business is Good.

The farmer sells a load of wheat. And all the world grows fair and sweet; He hums a couple of cheerful tunes And pays the grocer for his prunes. The grocer, who had the blues, Now buys his wife a pair of shoes. That ten the shoeman thinks God sent.

And runs and pays it on the rent. Next day the rent man hands the bill To Dr. Carver for a pill. And Dr. Carver tells his Frau That business is improving now. And cheers her up and says, "My dear,

You've been quite feeble for a year. I'm thinking you should have a rest. You'd better take a trip out west. And in a couple days the Frau Is on the farm of Joshua Howe. She pays her board to Farmer Howe Who takes the bill and says, "I swear. Here's something that just can't be beat. This bill's the one I got for wheat." He hums a couple of cheerful tunes. And goes and buys a lot more prunes.

Packard Single-Eight Touring Car

ANNOUNCING THE

PACKARD SINGLE-EIGHT

Packard Motor Car Company announces the Single-Eight to succeed the famous Twin-Six.

The Single-Eight emphatically surpasses, we believe, any car on the market, in speed, acceleration, braking, steering, smoothness of operation, ease of control, riding qualities, and beauty and distinction of appearance.

Packard Single-Eight accomplishes these superiorities over all previous motor car practices—

First, by beauty and dominance of appearance which unmistakably forecast exceptional brilliance of performance.

Second, by the complete elimination in the Single-Eight motor of the vibration inherent in previous eight-cylinder motor practice.

Third, by the embodiment in the Single-Eight of new engineering principles which result in a wealth of flexible power heretofore unknown.

Fourth, by the provision of braking, steering and control mechanisms of such simplicity and ease of operation as to be revolutionary.

Mechanical and operative perfection, coupled with compelling beauty of design and brilliance of finish, have produced a car nothing short of phenomenal.

It is our confident expectation that the Single-Eight will duplicate the distinction already accorded its companion car—the Single-Six that of being the most distinguished exponent of its type.

Stray Bits of Wisdom.

Truth is like a pearl; he alone possesses it who has plunged into the depth of life and torn his hands on the rocks of time.—Laboulaye.

Bird Accounted Unlucky.

The mythical bird, Arctura, in Gubernia, explains the unlikelihood attached to the swallows' word in several other traditional incidents, by saying that the swallow's prediction and prophecies in spring have been and almost unbroken in the other seasons. "Hence," he concludes, "the ancient belief that it was a bad omen to dream of swallows. According to Xenophon, the appearance of the swallows preceded the expedition of Cyrus against the Scythians, and announced it to be unlucky. The same presage is made by the swallows to Paris when he moves against the Scythians, and to Antiochus, who is at war with the Partians."

What Every Woman Learns.

"How long has she been married?" "Long enough to know that the nights she plans an especially good dinner for him are the nights he will either be late or won't come home at all."—Detroit Free Press.

Astronomy and Astrology.

Today astrology is the shadow of astronomy. Just as alchemy is of chemistry, but in the earlier ages, even of the Christian Era, there was no real distinction between the two. St. Isidore of Seville (of which place he became archbishop in 645), that encyclopedist of the knowledge of his day, was perhaps the first to draw a distinction between the two. John of Salisbury in the Twelfth century distinguished between metaphysics, the legitimate study and mathematics the illegitimate. Other church notables attributed astronomy to good angels and to Abraham, and astrology to Cham. Astrology was the earlier study, though much true astronomy was mixed up with it.

Modern Precience.

When Sargent Painted Roosevelt.

When John Sargent painted the portrait of Theodore Roosevelt the artist spent a day and a half finding a suitable pose. "That will do," Sargent exclaimed as the two men were starting up the stairs to the studio in the second day. Roosevelt, leading the way, half turned round and with a hand resting on the banister faced the artist. It was the position the painter desired. Sargent has an unusual method when painting a portrait. He looks at his sitter steadily, then takes a few steps backward. Then he advances rapidly and adds a bit of color on the canvas. This is repeated again and again.

Correcting Wrong Impression.

I had invited small Charlotte to have lunch with me and had especially prepared milk toast and other soft food for her. When she came to table and looked at her plate, she remarked: "I guess you didn't know I eat big-girl food."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

BRUGES RESUMES ODD CELEBRATION

Procession of the Most Sacred
Blood Again Is Held.

CITY OF BELLS AND BRIDGES

Bruges, Belgium, has just had the greatest of its annual celebrations, the procession of the Most Precious Blood; which, now that the World War is well past, has taken the prominent place in Belgian hearts that it held before the German occupation caused its temporary suspension. Of the city of this procession—one of the leading religious celebrations of Europe—a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society says: "If we are unfamiliar with the language of a foreign country we are likely to accept the names of its cities as meaning nothing in particular or as having an esoteric significance which we can hardly hope to fathom. But Bruges fools us. Its name has about as common an origin and is about as logically descriptive as 'Three Rivers' or 'Smith's Crossroads.' Because the town from the beginning had numerous canals and structures carrying streets across them it was named (in Flemish) 'Bridges.' It is a sort of reversed Venice. Whereas the latter is an area of sea with islands scattered in it, Bruges is a land area cut into islands by numerous canals. In both cities many houses rise sheer from the water and boats are used for traffic.

"Like Venice again, Bruges was once the commercial and banking center of the world. This was in the fourteenth century. The center of commercial activity had moved from Italy to Flanders, and Bruges was then Flanders' greatest market. World trade came up the river Zwyn which then gave it a harbor; merchants from the four quarters of the world maintained headquarters in the city; and its bourse regulated the exchange rate for all Europe. Ghent was a strong rival, but until the Zwyn finally silted up in 1490 Bruges held its own. At the height of its power Bruges had a population of 200,000; now the inhabitants number about 55,000.

Had Notorious U-Boat Nest.

"Not to be cheated of a port by Nature's destructive forces, the people of Bruges have built several canals to the North sea. The largest and most direct leads eight miles to Zeebrugge (meaning 'the seaport of Bruges'). This port and its canal and the basin at Bruges figured prominently in the World War. The Germans developed a strong U-boat nest at Bruges from which their underwater commerce destroyers went out to sink many an allied ship and to which they returned for repairs and outfitting. A tremendously strong shelter with a concrete roof six feet thick, built over the water, stands near the Bruges end of the sea canal today, a monument to German U-boat activities. Allied bombing planes were unable to find the exact location of this camouflaged nest, and probably would have been able to inflict but little damage on its roof even if direct hits had been scored. The British, however, successfully hindered the U-boat activities from the Bruges nest by their famous sortie against the Zeebrugge mole when old ships filled with concrete were sunk across the entrance channel to the canal.

Most Medieval Flemish City.

"Bruges is one of the quaintest of the old Flemish cities, and is said to preserve in its architecture a more medieval aspect than any of its sister municipalities. Prominent architectural features are the church of Notre Dame and the Cathedral of St. Sauveur, both excellent examples of early pointed Gothic; and the Market hall with its dominant belfry housing 48 bells, one of the most famous collections of chimes in Europe. "In St. Basil's chapel is kept the Sacred Vial, brought by crusading knights from Jerusalem, reputed to have been the vessel holding the water with which Joseph of Arimathea bathed the blood-stained body of Christ. This reliquary is carried once each year in the procession of the Most Precious Blood.

"Bruges has long been noted for its woolen cloths. In recognition of the city's preeminence in this field in 1430 Philip the Good of Burgundy named the order which he then created, 'the Order of the Golden Fleece.' This has ever since been one of the most exclusive knightly orders.

SHANGHAI STILL GROWS

Hard Times Cause Falling Off in Building Operations.

That Shanghai, despite hard times, continues to grow is to be gathered from the report that in 1922 new buildings to a value of 15,925,000 taels were erected. This marks a falling off, however, from the total of the preceding year of approximately 5,000,000 taels. The report, issued by the commissioner of public works, says 5,457 new structures were erected, of which 4,267 were Chinese houses and 84 were buildings for foreigners.

Two Rooms in Big Tree.

Island of Mauritius Just Small Part of Great Empire's "Far-Flung Battle Line."

Have you ever heard of "The Island of the Dodo?" Sounds like the name of the more or less mythical idol of Paul and Virginia.

However, there is such a place, because L. C. Barbeau is health commissioner of this island, and recently was a delegate to the national conference of social workers, held at Washington.

The Island of the Dodo, better known as the Island of Mauritius, is a small principality under the British government off the southeastern coast of Africa, east of Madagascar. Its population consists chiefly of Indians, British, Dutch and a mixture of all three.

"The island," said Mr. Barbeau, "is often spoken of as the 'star' of the Indian ocean, but I prefer the name of 'Sugar Island,' by which it is also known in our part of the world. It enjoys a delightful climate and exhibits a quality combination of tropical and temperate zone scenery. Its soil is completely free from heat of prey or venomous reptiles. The death rate, however, from disease is high."

This island is in the southern confines of the tropics. It was once the home of the extinct Dodo. Originally colonized by the French, it was conquered by the English during Napoleonic wars, and has remained British.

Because of its excellent harbors and its situation on the sea route between India and South Africa it was at one time of much commercial importance, but this has been much reduced by the opening of the Suez canal.

Dr. Barbeau's problem for public health work is that of a whole country with a population of nearly half a million inhabitants on an island only fourteen or fifteen miles in length. Dr. Barbeau is a graduate in medicine of the University of Edinburgh. He is director of the government laboratory in Mauritius.

Losing $10 to $75 an Acre.

Farmers the world over are having their troubles except in Denmark. English farmers are losing $10 an acre on wheat, $15 an acre on oats, $20 an acre on barley, and $50 to $75 an acre on potatoes. Hard as this may be to believe, these are average losses set forth by experts in the London Times. That paper comments, "If the English farmer this year simply ceases to grow crops he will be keeping money in his pocket instead of losing it." The reasons for this situation as given by the London newspaper are several, a disturbed world, unstable exchanges, high railway rates, restricted credit, too short credit, and middlemen's profits. When milk sells for 16 cents a quart in England, the farmer gets 7 cents; the railroad 4 cents; a loaf of bread retails for 18 cents, the farmer gets 7½ cents; millers and bakers get the rest; of every $5 bill spent for beef the farmer gets only $2. These figures are from the London Statist. They show how similar are the troubles of farmers 3,500 miles apart.

Impassable Street a Blessing.

The old adage, "It's an ill wind," was successfully demonstrated the other day to a young couple who live uptown in an apartment overlooking an avenue which, because of comparatively little traffic is always used by the neighborhood fire engines when answering a call, the New York Sun states.

This avenue is now half torn up. New sewers or something are being put in and three new apartment houses are being erected. There is much building material strewn about and passage even on foot is a trying matter.

The young couple were inclined to be resentful—the dust, the inconvenience—until they discovered that the state of the street was really a blessing in disguise. The fire engines are now compelled to take another route and the young couple's sleep at night is no longer disturbed as formerly.

"What Road's This?" "Dunno."

The limited horizon of childhood was illustrated aptly for a motorcar load of explorers who found themselves at a crossroads a few miles east of Holiday, Kan., without more than a general idea which way to turn. Two boys, each about eight years old, were trying to catch a turtle in a mudhole.

"What road's this?" the driver asked, pointing to the crossroad.

After a moment of frowning concentration, in chorus: "I dunno."

"Well, where does this one go straight ahead?"

"Oh," said the taller, "that goes to the store and the schoolhouse."

And both severed relations by grabbing again for the turtle.

Veteran Believer in Work.

Mrs. H. T. Rurhead, nearly eighty years of age, does all her own gardening and sold $300 worth of produce last season in addition to what she raised for her own use. She gardens about an acre and hires the plowing done, but does all the rest of the work herself, including the spading of the entire garden in the spring. She believes firmly that hard work cures most of the ills of life.—Sheilina Democrat.

To Fight Loss From Rust.

One result of Sir Robert Hadfield's announcement that the ravages of rust and corrosion represent an annual wastage of $2,500,000,000 is a suggested exhibition in London of non-rusting and anti-rust products.

The Unsolved Riddle.

I shall tell you, that in ancient times a debate hath arisen, and it remains yet unsolved; whether the happiness of man in this world doth consist more in contemplation or action?—From "The Complete Angler" (1563), by Isaac Walton.

LESS LIQUOR IS ENTERING NEW YORK

Border Shipments Have Fallen Off 50 Per Cent, Says Merritt—Rum Fleet Now Numbers Only Four Ships.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, July 11.—New York is losing its thirst, according to Captain R. Q. Merritt, chief enforcement officer and Captain B. L. Reed, in charge for the United States coast guard, patrolling the New York and New Jersey coasts for rum running craft.

"Rum running is about 100 per cent less extensive than reported," Merritt said today. Reed coincided with this opinion.

"I was alarmed at the reports coming from the Canadian border saying 30 cars of liquor were passing a given point each hour," Merritt said. "To see for myself I personally took command of the border road in question last week."

"In two nights and a day, while I stopped every automobile that came along the road, I failed to find a single drop of liquor."

"Liquor is coming in over the border of course, lots of it. But the shipments have fallen off 50 per cent over the past, and not one hundredth part of what is said to be coming in is actually carried over the border."

Merritt's men captured 31 liquor laden trucks in June. "We estimate that is about half the supply that came over," Merritt said.

Reed added this comment: "A month ago 11 rum ships lay off the New Jersey coast. Today there are but four. Rum runners get by us, of course, but we're making captures and the business is falling off."

Harris-Shultis.

The home of Daniel P. Fitzsimmons, justice of the peace of the town of Kingston, at Stony Hollow, was the scene of a very pretty wedding Tuesday when Frederick J. Harris and Miss Sylvia A. Shultis were united in marriage. Judge Fitzsimmons performed the ceremony in his office. The attendants were Joseph A. Pessenaar and Mae Pessenaar. The bride was for many years a teacher in the town of Olive and is well known. The groom is a chef at the Pessenaar High Point Lodge on the Ashokan Boulevard. Following a wedding trip they will reside at Broadhead.

Birthday Party.

Melanchthon, June 11.—A very delightful birthday party, was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Osterhout at Monticauhtons on Saturday evening, June 30, when a number of her friends and cousins gathered at their home to celebrate the birthday of their daughter, Miss Lulu. A delicious dinner was served at six o'clock by her mother, after which singing and dancing was enjoyed by all. Those present were the Misses Beatrice, Ada and Mabel Baker, Annie Hornebeck, Lulu and Lillian Osterhout and Edmund Barclay, Edna Baker, Fred Davis and Cypert Marshall. Guests departed at a late hour, wishing Miss Osterhout many more happy birthdays.

Uister Garden Club Meeting.

On Tuesday afternoon the Uister Garden Club met at the home of Miss Steenken in Sand ridge. With the exception of a short business session, the afternoon was devoted to most interesting reports of those who attended the meeting of the Garden Club of America, held recently at Newport. Mrs. Fowden, president of the Uister Garden Club, gave a general report of the meetings at Newport, while Mrs. Higginson told of visits to various especially beautiful gardens of this famous resort. Mrs. Kelley told of the blue garden of Mrs. Arthur Curtis James and Mrs. Schunemaker described the charming rural retreat given for the benefit of the guests at the home of Mrs. James, the same being a sort of dedication of the rose theater, a beautiful out-of-doors theater. Mrs. Carter reported on the "Trial Garden" in Newport, carried on by the Newport Club and read a very interesting paper on "The Vanishing Gardens of Newport." At Tuesday's meeting announcement was made that on September 18, there will be held at Mrs. Kelley's home in St. Remy an exhibition of pictures of various gardens of the members of the Uister Garden Club. The next meeting of the club will be with Mrs. William A. Warren at Wynkoop Farms, her home in Hurley.

At the Auditorium.

Practically the entire contents of an antique shop were borrowed by Mae Murray for use in her photoplay, "Broadway Rose," in which the star is presented by Robert Z. Leonard at the Auditorium today. As a result the scenes in which Miss Murray as the Broadway dancer returns to her former home in the country have a strikingly realistic effect.

Thought for the Day.
There is a big difference between being good looking and looking good.

YORK HELD ON SECOND CHARGE

Lewis York of High Woods was taken before Justice of the Peace Walter Webber in the town of Ulster, Monday afternoon and arraigned on a charge of reckless driving and of leaving a public highway without reporting an accident to which he is alleged to have been a party.

He waived examination through his counsel, Grant Brinler, and was held to await the action of the grand jury. York is also awaiting the action of the grand jury in having taken an automobile of Armour & Company without consent, and while so using it, running into an auto of Max Wensberger on the Glenelg Hill, in which auto were some women and damage resulted.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, July 11.—Heaviness marked trading at the opening stock exchange today. Declines ran from a small fraction to a point.

Reactionary tendencies were noted in the first two hours of trading. Steel Common was forced down 1 point to 89½, only ¼ point from its low of the year and Independent Steel shares suffered a similar loss.

Most railway shares were fractionally lower with rather heavy selling in Southern Railway and Baltimore and Ohio, which sold to below 32 and 35 respectively. Additional oil cuts were responsible for the continued heaviness in the petroleum group but losses were confined to fractions. Motor and tire stocks moved to lower levels.

Trading was practically at a standstill in the afternoon. Prices, which showed signs of weakness earlier in the session, hardened somewhat, but most of them remained steady.

Quotations given by C. H. Halsey & Co., 27 William street, New York City, branch office, Warren Building, 260-62 Fair street, Kingston, N. Y.

Gloves Long in Use.

Gloves were worn by the Egyptian men as early as the Eighteenth dynasty but there seems to be no evidence that women wore them at all. A pair of 16-18th century length were found in the tomb of Tut-Ankh-Amen for his use in the future world.

AMERICANS MAKE SPENDING RECORD

More Luxuries Sold Last Year Than Even During War Inflation Period.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Washington, July 11.—Americans hung up a new record for free spending, especially for luxuries during the past year, the internal revenue bureau said today. The bureau's records, classifying receipts for the eleven months ended May 31, latest data available from collectors, showed tremendous increases in business by manufacturers and merchants.

These figures, linked with those of the federal reserve board and the commerce department, revealed that the past year's business was one of the best in history, not even excepting the war years. The revenue bureau catalogued only certain groups of more favored luxuries that are taxable. But these gave clear reflection of the buying power which has been constantly in evidence and up to the present time shows no signs of diminishing.

Treasury officials cited reports showing $125,000,000 paid to the government in taxes on sales of automobiles and accessories. This was an increase of $35,000,000 over last year. Automobile taxes collected represented sales of nearly $3,000,000,000 by the automobile trade. Taxes from this source in the months of spring and summer have almost doubled figures for the corresponding periods a year ago.

More money is being spent for candy, jewelry, cameras, cigars and cigarettes, and a lengthy list of so-called non-essentials than has been reported in the history of the revenue bureau. Officials said this indicates that money is plentiful.

Free spending is general over the entire country. The farmers are buying more generously than ever before. In the large cities business keeps up at a high level. But in the rural districts where farmers have become better stabilized after liquidating obligations of former years, orders for luxuries as well as home and farm necessities are pouring in to mercantile establishments.

Government records offer substantial proof of the fact that farmers, as a class, are the heaviest spenders in the country. The city merchants are now feeling the effect of the farmers' better credit position. Mail order houses report heavy business, and the retail and wholesale trade gives similar reports.

He Was an Average Man

By JANE OSBORN

(© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Reider Dawson sighed dejectedly as he looked first at one pretty face and then at another.

"Some way or other none of them seems to get me," he told the art chief who had strewn the drawings on Dawson's large flat-top desk for his inspection. "They are good drawings—pretty girls—but they don't appeal. It isn't the right type. Your artists haven't chosen models that appeal to the average man—and it's the average man we want to appeal to in advertising."

"You're the doctor," was the art director's reply. "Mr. Collins gave orders to leave the decision to you." He gathered the drawings together ruefully. "Just what type would you suggest instead? Of course, she must be pretty. In a soap advertisement like this we've got to have a pretty head. It seems as if these sketches represent almost every type of pretty girl there is."

Reider Dawson thought for a minute, let his gaze wander off to the skyline of gray buildings against a gray sky and sighed again.

You want a girl that looks as if she had good health, good sense and pep. Take a girl like that debutante in there. Now, she's pretty, isn't she? Nine men out of ten would say so—but she's none of your baby-eyed, swan-necked, narrow-nosed creatures—"

"Miss Hollis!" said the art chief, a little surprised, and then, "Yes, she is pretty, very pretty in her own way, but she isn't the pretty girl type, if you get the distinction; besides, I doubt whether she'd consent to having her face used as a soap advertisement. Still, I get your point—"

The art chief may have understood Reider Dawson's criticism, but he was not at all cheerful or optimistic as he gathered the drawings he had collected together and left the room of the young vice president.

Then Dawson sat wondering if he had been too critical. He was frankly sorry that he had put the art chief to the trouble of getting more sketches, but if it was true, as he had said, that Mr. Collins, the president, had left orders to have him pass on all sketches, then the only honest thing for him to do was to give his candid opinion.

He was just wondering, though, how much the weather and his own sense of loneliness had to do with his severity toward those insipid pretty faces when there was a downright sort of tap at the door and in walked Miss Hollis. She wore a small tray covered with a snowy napkin and there was a suspicion of steam coming from beneath its folds. Reider Dawson looked at her a little more closely than perhaps he should have done ordinarily—but now he was trying to justify himself in his statement that she was of the type of much stronger and wider appeal than these insipid girls the art chief had shown him. Yes, he had been right, perfectly right—hers was a convincing type of prettiness, as substantial and downright as the way she knocked at the door or the way she placed the tray on the table.

"I have brought you something to sample," she began, raising the napkin and letting out the aroma of well-brewed coffee, and something that smelled amazingly like the gingerbread that had been so dear to his heart as a boy. "You know we handle the advertising for the people that make Three X molasses. We're going to feature a big poster showing steaming gingerbread made with Three X. With it is to go a recipe for making the best gingerbread. I've been experimenting on an inexpensive simple recipe, and here I have narrowed down to two and I can't decide which is better. They are put together differently and the amount of flour and molasses is different. Perhaps you aren't hungry, but I'm so anxious to get your opinion—"

"What's the coffee to do with it?" asked Reider, grinning and drawing up his chair before the table where the tray rested.

The debutant blushed visibly. "Well, you see, gingerbread is rather dry eating without some beverage, and it seemed to me as if coffee went with it better than tea—and it's such a miserable day; but you don't have to drink it unless you want to. I made it from that Big Bear Brand coffee we do advertising for. It's not so bad for an inexpensive coffee—"

After that Reider Dawson could not help but notice that very, very often Miss Hollis found excuse to bring her little sampling tray to his room. She was constantly working on recipes for the various food products for which the concern did advertising. Formerly when such tests had been made ten or a dozen of the office staff had been called into the dietitian's laboratory and then had followed a lengthy discussion of the merits of the various samples, but now seemingly she was playing favorites. And that was just what Reider Dawson hoped devoutly that she was doing. For Reider Dawson wanted to marry her and he didn't want to ask her if there wasn't a ghost of a chance that she would have him. He wouldn't much mind being turned down by some girl he told himself, but he never could go on working in the same office with Miss Hollis once she had rejected his suit. So Reider Dawson was going slowly.

Meantime he was receiving an occasional bit of good-natured banter from Mr. Collins and others who could themselves good friends among the executives of the company.

"She's a nice girl, and a pretty girl," Collins told Reider. "And a daughter of an old friend of mine. You'll have to go a long way before you find her equal. In the meantime you're getting all the gingerbread and crullers and we're getting hungry."

Reider Dawson continued, therefore, to feel

BURRELL PROTESTS
ANDERSON PROBE

Sees No Reason Why Prosecutor Should Push Inquiry at Public Expense When League Itself Asserts Its Superintendence is Innocent.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, July 11.—Prohibition forces today rallied to the support of William M. Anderson, superintendent of the State Anti-Saloon League, under investigation by the grand jury on charges of grand larceny and forgery. The charges were made by O. B. Phillips, former collector for the dry organization.

In a letter to Ferdinand Pecora, assistant district attorney, David James Burrell, president of the Anti-Saloon League, placed his organization on record as entirely satisfied with Anderson's administration of the league's affairs, and insisted "There has been no fraud, larceny or forgery committed."

"I cannot see why, when every director of the Anti-Saloon League which you claim has been defrauded, protests against this inquiry and Anderson and everything he has done, you still think crime has been committed," Burrell wrote.

"Why this grim farce, which meets with no visible approval save that of the lawless wets, should be continued, at public expense, is beyond my comprehension."

Burrell said he could not appear before the grand jury, due to the condition of his health, but offered to answer any questions under oath, directed to him at his home.

COLONIALS LOSE TO SCHATZ TEAM

At Poughkeepsie on Tuesday—First Time That the Schatz Players Have Ever Defeated the Poughkeepsie Club Nip and Tuck All the Time—Deegan Gets Long Hit—Score 7-5.

Errors both of omission and commission at the wrong time, inability to hit the pinches, also the effectiveness of Kahn in the pinches, and Riverview Park were the main reasons that the Colonials went down to defeat at the hands of the Schatz Club at Poughkeepsie on Tuesday by the score of 7-5.

Errors.
Although the Colonials are credited with only three errors in the box score, practically all of these errors counted in the run getting, and then, too, there were some errors of judgment which do not show in the box score which also counted in the run getting. In fact the Schatz Club earned just three runs from the Rubs which as the score shows would not have been enough to win the game. The Colonials were playing good ball on the field until it came to the pinches and then a misplay seemed to be in order.

Hitting in the Pinches.
The Colonials touched up Kahn for thirteen hits while the Poughkeepsie team is credited with only nine hits which goes to prove that hits don't always win ball games. The Colonials were able to hit Kahn until it came to the point where there was one or two runners on the bases and a hit would send them in home with the run or runs which would have put the Colonials to the fore but then he became invincible. During the game eight Colonial runners were left on the bases.

Riverview Park.
However, in all fairness to the Colonial players, it must be stated that if they were on any other field than Riverview Park they very likely would have at least three or four more runs on their side of the ledger. McCue and Deegan both sent hits over into left field which cleared the high trees along the road and landed in some one's front yard on the other side of the street. In most ball parks these hits would have been home runs but at Riverview, due to the ground rules, they were good for one.

base only. Both of these men hit when there were runners on the bases.
Deegan's Long Hit.

The longest hit of the game and one of the longest at Poughkeepsie this year was made by Matty Deegan in the seventh. It was a hit to center field. The hit cleared the ball field and went over into the field where the automobiles were parked, hit one of these automobiles and then came back into the playing field again. Matty drove two runs in home on his hit and made third himself.

Colonials Score in First.
The Colonials started off like a house afire when three safe hits in a row by McCue, Coyle and Fogarty gave the local team two runs to start with.

Schatz Scores in Third.
The third inning was an exceptionally good inning for the Poughkeepsie club and an exceptionally poor one for the Colonials. Three hits, one error of commission, and one or two of omission, gave the Schatz Club three runs and one run lead.

Colonials Tie in Third.
In the third inning, despite a double play, with the aid of four hits the Colonials managed to put over one more tally. Fogarty, Deegan, Schwab and Russell were credited with the hits in this inning. Although both Clark and Dewey managed to hit safely in Poughkeepsie's half of the third they were unable to put any more runs in home.

Schatz Goes Into Lead.
In the fifth inning the Schatz club again managed to go into the lead, due to a walk, an excellent sacrifice bunt, a hit and an error of judgment, all of which resulted in two more runs, making the score 5-3.

Colonials Make It Even.
In the seventh inning with McCue and Fogarty an first and second respectively, Deegan hit his three bagger which tied the score at 5 all.

Schatz Wins in Seventh.
The Schatz club came back at once, however, and as later developments showed won the game in their half of the seventh. Two hits and a little slow work on the part of the local fielders was responsible for two more runs being scored, making the score 7-5.

The Colonials did nothing in the eighth and in the ninth, Fogarty was out at first on a very questionable decision. McCue struck out, Coyle hit safely but was caught going down to second on Fogarty's hit to the short stop.

A Good Umpire.
McGrath, who worked behind the bat, was one of the best umpires that a Poughkeepsie team has ever put on the field. He was perfectly fair to both the home club and the visiting club.

TAGGING ALL THE BASES IN THE MAJOR LEAGUES.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
The Pirates outbait the Giants but New York's five homers gave them the game, 9 to 8.

Henry held the Cubs to four scattered hits, Brooklyn winning 9 to 0. Roush's homer in the tenth broke up the game with the Phillies, the Reds gathering five runs and winning, 7 to 2.

Joe Stuart, of the Cardinals, did an iron man stunt when he won a double header from the Braves 11 to 1 and 6 to 3.

Coming from behind, the Yankees nosed out the White Sox 3 to 2. Uhl outpitched Heimach, Sewell drove in three runs, shone brightly in the field and the Indians handed the Athletics a 4 to 3 setback.

Urban Shocker annexed his thirteenth victory and Williams his fourteenth homer when the Browns trimmed the Senators 9 to 1.
